This week at Cowbridge School ...

As we reach the end of this week, I'd like to take a moment to reflect on the focused work we've seen across the school. It's been a period of significant engagement, particularly for some of our older students.

This week, we held our Year 13 Parents' Evening. These meetings are a vital opportunity for students, parents, and teachers to discuss academic progress and consider the crucial next steps for post-18 pathways, whether that's university, apprenticeships, or the world of work. The commitment shown by everyone who attended truly underscores the partnership we share in ensuring our Year 13 students achieve their full potential as they prepare for their final examinations.

We have seen impressive focus and application from our Year 11 Geography students. 91 students completed their Non-Examined Assessment (NEA) Write-Up. This piece of independent fieldwork and analysis is a significant component of their GCSE course, demanding rigorous academic skills, time management, and meticulous attention to detail. Their hard work has been commendable, and we are incredibly proud of the dedication they have shown to this substantial project.

As we move into December, we are excited to share information about our upcoming Book Fair which arrives at the school on Friday, 5 December. This offers a fantastic opportunity for students of all ages to discover new titles and foster that lifelong love of reading - and it also offers us a chance to earn free books for our school.
