This week at Cowbridge School ...

At the end of last week, we were proud to host the Rotary Young Chef competition. It was a privilege to witness the level of focus, technical precision, and culinary flair displayed by all our participants. The atmosphere was one of intense but friendly competition, and the final results were a testament to the students' hard work and preparation. Huge congratulations to our two winners, Ryder and Reuben (Year 10). Their exceptional dishes impressed the judges and showcased a level of skill that is truly commendable for their age. We look forward to supporting them as they move forward in this prestigious competition.

Beyond the kitchen, we have also been celebrating our visual creators. Our latest Artist of the Month gallery is now live - click the link in the right-hand column to view the featured work. The imagination and technical ability on display this month are nothing short of inspiring. These pieces provide a wonderful window into the creative minds of our students and highlight the dedication of our Art department in nurturing such talent.

Seeing our students excel in these extracurricular arenas is a reminder of the importance of a well-rounded education. Whether through the culinary arts or fine art, these experiences build the confidence and character that define our school.

*Have a lovely
