

Cowbridge Lower School Newsletter

13.6.25

It's been all systems go in Lower School this week with aliens crash landing their spaceship on our playground!!!

Year 1 have been tasked with some very important jobs in order to find out some more information about what has actually happened. They took samples from the crash scene and used their measuring skills to compare the masses of the different samples. They also discovered that an alien was missing and it is.....somewhere in Cowbridge! There is no need for immediate alarm, however, they have written news reports to raise people's awareness of the breaking news. As and when the alien is found, they have begun designing new spaceships in order for it to return home safely.

Nursery had a fabulous journey of their own this week as they went on their school trip to Castell Coch. We could not have wished for a more beautiful day to go exploring in this real life fairytale castle and it's grounds. A huge "thankyou" to all our grown-ups for making it possible-the children were amazing and it really was a wonderful day.

Reception have been thinking about train journeys this week and have even decided to set up their own train station. They have also been practising their time telling skills and learning how to tell the time using o'clock.

On Thursday, we all celebrated Empathy Day. Reading a variety of stories helped us to appreciate words and actions from other people's points of view- a very mature skill indeed.

Friday saw Reception and Year 1 go on their own trip to the big school. We had an amazing time practising our sewing skills with Y12 students who helped us make gifts for someone special in our families this weekend.

Wishing all our families a wonderful weekend.
